Walk in Love

Ephesians 4:29 – 5:4 (ESV)

The theme for the 2013/14 academic year is a good one, “Walk in Love.” Today we look at the context in the Apostle Paul’s letter to the church at Ephesus and we take our instruction.

Let no corrupting talk come out of your mouths, but only such as is good for building up, as fits the occasion, that it may give grace to those who hear.
And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption. Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be put away from you, along with all malice. Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you.

Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children. And walk in love, as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us, a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God.

May God bless each of us as we go about our lives and live out our vocation and may He, through the Holy Spirit, empower each of us walk in love – every day.

Lonn Maly, Vice President for Academic Affairs

2012/13 Book of the Year

The Book of the Year for 2012/13 is Picking Cotton: Our Memoir of Injustice and Redemption by Jennifer Thompson and Ronald Cotton with Erin Torneo. Concordia University’s theme for the 2012/13 year “Our Refuge and Strength” can be found throughout this story of resilience, forgiveness, and redemption.

2013-14 Book of the Year

The Book of the Year for 2013/14 is Behind the Beautiful Forevers by Katherine Boo. The description inside the book jacket of Behind the Beautiful Forevers states: “With intelligence, humor, and deep insight into what connects human beings to one another in an era of tumultuous change, Behind the Beautiful Forevers carries the reader headlong into one of the twenty-first century’s hidden worlds, and into the lives of people impossible to forget.

Concordia University Saint Paul’s theme of the 2013-2014 year “Walk in Love” provides a strong platform for discussion of this non-fiction account of life, death and hope in a Mumbai Undercity.

Areas of Emphasis for Academic Affairs
The Office of Academic Affairs continues to focus its energy around three of the goal areas in the university’s 2014 – 2018 strategic plan putting in place efforts to grow student enrollment at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, to increase student persistence to graduation, and to improve the transition to job or graduate school. To that end we are working on the following:
- Refining current academic programs in order that they are of the highest quality and are responsive to our perceptions of “the market” in higher education
- Developing new academic programs that reflect market needs and that are in the areas of expertise at the university (e.g., business, education, health sciences/health care)
- Strengthening partnerships with other colleges and universities and internship sites
- Continuing to be a “culture of evidence” when it comes to assessing how students are meeting learning outcomes in general education, in majors, and in graduate programs
- Improving academic support programs that facilitate persistence and graduation
- Increasing the intensity of academic advising for students
- Providing students with more relevant academic experiences and internships
- Continuing efforts to develop an exemplary graduate school and graduate programs

Two other areas of emphasis are also important – professional development for faculty toward the end of “exemplary teaching” and continual efforts toward encouraging and assisting faculty with the important task of connecting faith and learning.

Faculty Professional Development Opportunities
The continuous professional development of our faculty is a priority of the Office of Academic Affairs at Concordia University. Below is a list of some assumptions from which we operate and a list of opportunities. Let Lonn Maly know if you wish to participate in any of these upcoming events (other than August 19 – 20).

Assumptions:
1. Faculty professional development is best when primarily focused on the improvement of teaching students
2. Faculty professional development has as its goal continuous improvement – no matter where we are on the “excellence in teaching” continuum, there is always room for improvement or growth
3. Faculty professional development should afford opportunities to better teach students who are diverse, better teach students who learn in a variety of ways (and maybe differently from faculty), and better teach in a variety of modalities
4. Faculty professional development should include a variety of opportunities – on campus and off campus, large groups and small groups, and some choice of opportunities
Opportunities:

Vocation of Lutheran Colleges: “Vocation: A Challenge to the Commodification of Education”: July 22 – 24, 2013 at Augsburg College

29th Annual Conference on Distance Teaching and Learning Conference: August 7 – 9 in Madison, WI

A Perspective on Lutheran Colleges
An excerpt from an article entitled “Gift and Calling: A Lutheran Perspective on Higher Education” by Darrell Jodock in the journal Intersections (fall, 2011); p. 5

What makes a college Lutheran? Is it the number of students who belong to that denomination? Or the number of faculty who are active in Lutheran congregations? Or the number and size of contributions that come from the Lutheran church and/or Lutheran sources? Without discounting the potential importance of any of these, I’d like to suggest that what makes a university Lutheran is the prominence of Lutheran principles in its mission statements and the degree to which its programs, its decisions, and the priorities of its faculty and staff are informed by those principles….

The most basic of these underlying ideas is that we are gifted. Our existence, our abilities, our possessions, our relationship with God – all these are gifts that we have received.

So what does this mean for us at Concordia University in 2013? What is a Lutheran college or university? What are the underlying ideas? How does one connect faith and learning in the college classroom today?

If you are interested in questions such as these and can spare some time each month, please feel free to join the Concordia Learning Community (CLC) group that considers such matters once a month or so. Contact Lonn Maly if you are interested. Our next meeting is scheduled for this Thursday, June 19 from 12:00 to 1:30 pm in the Concordia Conference Room.

Thoughts About Excellence in Teaching

The main reason students come to class unprepared is that they don’t see what difference it makes. In many courses, reading assignments and lectures are independent parts of the course, sometimes overlapping, sometimes supplementary, but often not perceived as interdependent. Thus, the first strategy for encouraging reading is frequent use of the phrase “As you read in your reading assignment for today …” or the question “What was your reaction to [the author of the reading]’s discussion of …?”

A second strategy is to have students write a one-minute paper at the beginning of occasional class periods on “The most important idea (or two or three ideas) I got from the reading assignment for today.” Alternatively, you can have students write a question – either something they would like explained or something that was stimulated by the reading.
